Passport Police Verification Guide

General customer guidance about police verification after a passport application.

Why verification matters

Passport applications may involve pre- or post-police verification depending on the case. Passport Seva notes that most cases require pre-police verification, with specified exceptions.

Prepare for verification

Item	Details
Address consistency	Keep your current address details consistent with the application and supporting documents.
Residence history	Be prepared to provide accurate information about your residences and other details requested in the application.
Documents	Keep the documents used in the passport application safely available for reference.
Accuracy	Do not provide false information or attempt to influence the verification process.

For minors

Passport Seva has specific rules for police verification of minors, including circumstances where it may generally not be required. The final decision depends on the Passport Office and the applicant's case.

Safety

Anjan Digital Services can assist with application preparation, but customers should deal only with authorised officials for police verification and should never pay an unofficial fee.

Important: This is a customer-preparation guide, not an official Passport Seva form. Requirements can vary by applicant and service. Always check the latest official Passport Seva guidance before submission.
